An Object Lesson to Oakland.

If the promoters of the Bankers' Hotel were possessed of only a small modicum of the faith and the enterprise that was possessed by the late A. T. Horton, the so-called "father" as he was the founder of the present beautiful city of San Diego with a population of approximately 40,000 inhabitants, there would be no hesitation or delay about its immediate construction on the scale and on the plans originally outlined and approved. Horton undertook, single-handed, with practically no capital other than that which he invested in the original purchase of 880 acres of virtually waste land fronting on a landlocked bay which, at the time had no commerce, to lay the foundations of a great city. He bought the land which was only good for the pasturage of cattle at the time during the brief rainy season at twenty-six cents per acre. And thirty miles away across the lower California border was then worth only fifteen cents per acre and a principality was purchasable there at that rate. Horton had faith in the bay and in the climate. He showed his faith by erecting a hotel in the heart of his apparently worthless domain larger than any then existing in the State, and which was up to the time of the erection of the Palace Hotel by William C. Ralston, the largest hotel west of Chicago, to invite tourist travel and to serve as the nucleus of the city which he was then founding. His enterprise was ridiculed as visionary and doomed to be a failure. But Horton's faith was unshaken by adverse criticism and ridicule. The noteworthy fact is that it accomplished its purpose and stands today as a monument to his sagacity and foresight, a great and beautiful city having grown around the house he built and bears his name.

The Horton House was built in the heart of what was apparently a desert waste. There was virtually no local custom to support it. It was surrounded by a city laid out chiefly in unimproved streets and unoccupied lots. But Horton knew the value of printers' ink and he used it freely and judiciously. He spread abroad the knowledge and the virtues of an equable climate and the commercial possibilities of one of the three naturally landlocked bays on the western coast of the continent from the British Columbia line to the Mexican boundary. And, it overcame finally all the ridicule and the envy which the unfriendly competition of rival cities directed against it and triumphed in an eminent degree, and Horton lived long enough to see its success. His faith and enterprise should serve as an object lesson to the promoters of the Bankers' Hotel in Oakland worthy of emulation. Here we have a city with a population of anywhere between 225,000 and 250,000 within the corporate limits and an additional contiguous population of like proportions tributary to it, with a climate equal to that of San Diego, a harbor equal in character and of larger capacity for commerce, and surroundings infinitely more attractive and picturesque to back up the proposition of a tourist hotel vastly superior to the one Horton built solely on faith. What Oakland needs today is the exhibition by its moneyed men of some of the spirit, enterprise and enthusiasm which possessed the "father of San Diego."

A Good Year for California.

The late runstorm covered all of the State lying north of Los Angeles. The heavy downpour last night evidently advanced the record of the season up to date close to that of last year. There has been an exceptionally heavy snowfall all along the line of the Sierra, as was indicated the other day by the snow slides which carried away a large section of the snow sheds on the Central Pacific railroad east of the Summit.

The outlook for California is unusually bright this year. Every farmer and fruitgrower in all parts of the State is hopeful of bringing good crops for the precipitation so far has just suited the wants of the tiller of the soil. But the banking up of snow on the summit of the Sierra brings joy to the miners and to the owners of the hydro-electric power plants which are strung along the base of the range from Sisayou to Tehachapi. For its presence there means filling up the lakes and the reservoirs employed for the conservation of water and an abundant supply throughout the coming summer to maintain operations in both of these important industries. That means the benefiting of trade and manufacturing in general for the energy developed by the hydro-electric power plants is associated inseparably now with every branch of human effort throughout the State. This year is evidently going to be a good one for California.

Nevada as a Gold Producer.

According to estimates made by the Tonopah Miner, that district's output of precious metal last year amounted to nearly $7,500,000. In all probability, the value of the ore mined and milled in Goldfield equaled, if it did not exceed that of Tonopah. The other mining district in Southern Nevada swelled the gross amount considerably. As a gold producer, Nevada in all probability, now outranks California and is next to Colorado in the list of gold-producing States. It has ceased to be known as the silver State, a misnomer which grew out of the impression that silver was its chief mineral product because the Comstock lode contained a larger proportion of the white metal than it did of the yellow. Prospectors consequently turned their attention solely to the search for silver-bearing veins until the discovery of the rich gold-bearing veins at Tonopah a few years ago. That discovery revolutionized the ideas of mining men generally regarding Nevada's mineral wealth, and the search has since been almost totally confined to gold until now it has become more of a golden State in a mineral producing sense than California. Indeed, it will surprise no one if Nevada should in a few years hence stand at the head of the list of gold-producing States, for there is a vast area of its mineral-bearing territory which remains practically unexplored and every successive year since the Tonopah discovery has witnessed the uncovering of new deposits and the opening of new mining districts.

In all probability the mystery of the attempt to burn down the Rosenthal Shoe Store on Van Ness avenue, San Francisco, some weeks ago, has been cleared up through the arrest of a confidential clerk who admits being short from $3500 to $4000 in his accounts. He denies having fired the store, but the discovery that he had embezzled the funds of the firm and doctored his accounts himself is the strongest kind of a motive for the attempted incendiarism in order to destroy the evidence of his shortage.

Oakland's financial prosperity continues to climb. Bradstreet's report of the bank clearings for the week ending Thursday shows an increase of 23.3 per cent as compared with the corresponding week last year. The report shows also that the financial situation is improving also all over the country.

MRS. CRIMMINS A GOTHAM FAVORITE.

Mrs. Crimmins, who was Margaret Cole of San Francisco and is a widow of Lieutenant Crimmins, is a very great favorite in New York.

She has lost all her money and is left with the young girls of the family. Crimmins is not charitable, but they might be able to do Mrs. Margaret and the Lieutenant Crimmins, son of John D. Crimmins, the New York millionaire.

The members of the Crimmins family are among the most charitable in the city and in all of New York and this season they gave a Christmas dinner.

There are a number of women of the name of the Little Sisters of the Poor. Mrs. Crimmins and her children personally serve the poor people with the traditional turkey and cranberry.

MISS BARBARA REID

A well-known writer has said "What people tell us we cannot do, we try and find out for ourselves that we can."

This is especially true of Californians—they rush in upon affairs with a courage that is splendid, and in spite of all obstacles they manage to win out, reaching a goal that might be considered beyond their dreams—whether the goal happens to be social preferment, literary achievement or artistic excellence.

One hears much of Miss Lillie Lawlor's good work in New York, where she has been singing before cultured audiences. She sang some delightful songs in French and English at a recent concert in which Mrs. Bloomfield Ziegler was the pianist.

Miss Lawlor is a great friend of Mrs. Will Crocker, who has pushed her interests in every way possible and who entertained for her elaborately during Miss Lawlor's stay in San Francisco last winter.

Miss Lawlor spent many months in Paris where she was the intimate friend of Mrs. Hatt McKee, formerly Cornelia Baxter of Denver. In Paris Miss Lawlor has her own apartment, furnished in the most exquisite taste, and she had many friends in the French capital, who were people of social prestige.

Another quite young girl who has achieved success abroad is Miss Clara Alexander, who was formerly in the Alameda school department. School teaching never appealed specially to little Miss Alexander, who was born "way down South," and whose childhood had been spent on a plantation with the historic old negroes of song and story. She could imitate the negroes to perfection, and during her last year was a language which she had made her own, so one fine day she decided upon a career, and started on her way.

In San Francisco the Southern contingent helped her and she gave readings and recitals. The latter fall of song and story, and in New York the Will Irwins gave her a helping hand.

The latest news from Clara Alexander comes from London, where she has recited before King Edward and where she gives readings in the many grand homes of England's nobility.

It is a far cry from a little Alameda school room to the court of England, and while there might not really be much difference in the days work, at least one has wider horizons and has seen life in many different places.

Miss Alexander has been told that she has a very good voice, and she means to study in Paris, so perhaps she may win additional laurels in the world of the operatic stage.

MORGAN FAMILY LEADS NEW YORK ARTS SOCIETY.

Many well-known Californians have been in New York for the holiday season, among them George Crocker and Mr. and Mrs. William Crocker. The latter are spending a good deal of time in New York where they are to take a house, as the boys of the family are to enter an Eastern preparatory school. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander (Hattie Crocker) are very popular in New York's exclusive social set, and all the Crockers make a most devoted family enjoying life together, sometimes in California and sometimes in New York.

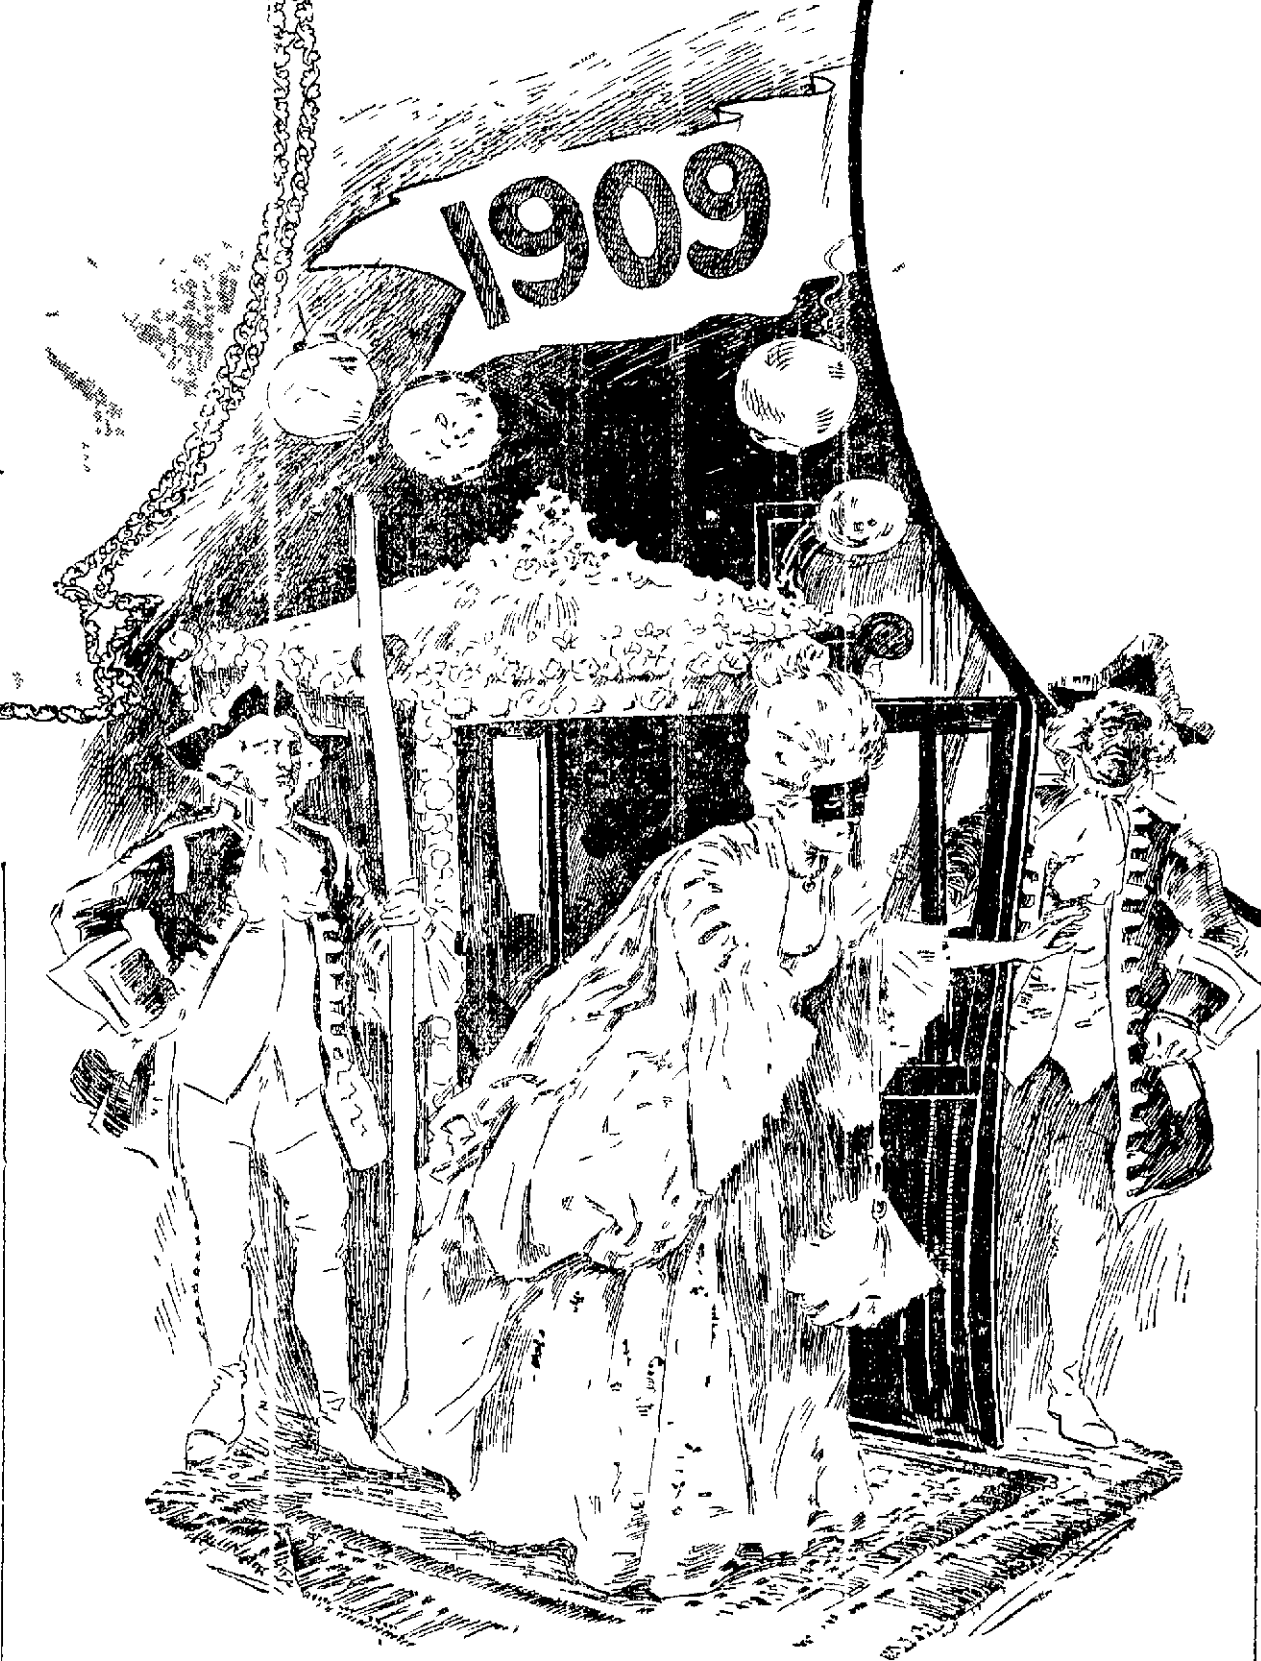

Of course there are many social sets in New York, there is no small circle. Perhaps the most exclusive social set is that headed by Mr. Pierpont Morgan—it is a fine old set, having its pretensions for social precedence on family for the Pierpont Morgans have the best family tree in America and most of the friends are descendants from well-known families of colonial times. Very few of that exclusive set have "traveled" in our generation and while they have money—more money than is to be found in any other set—it has not established their claim to social distinction.

In a financial way, of course, the world has a great deal of Pierpont Morgan—of what he buys in the way of artistic treasures, of what he travels. But of the social life of the Morgan family, and of many of their friends, one hears but little. There is never any social pose and money could not buy one's way into the heart of this exclusive circle of families, who belong to New York's most distinguished social circle.

There is another set that one hears of continually. In the leadership of which one finds always Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, and Mrs. Hermann Ochs, who was formerly a San Francisco social figure, and before that the Nevada sage hen plans and is the mining town of Gold Hill.

One has a very good idea of Mrs. Fish of Mrs. Ochs, and of the latter sister Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr. They make up another set socially prominent because of their money which bought their way to much which is theirs in many ways. No wonder they are careful of their fortunes, they have so much to lose more money.

The Pierpont Morgans set are much interested in the arts in America and in the people and artists who have achieved distinction are sure of a welcome among them, extended in the form of a good commission.

Mrs. Ochs and Mrs. Vanderbilt do not in any way display a generosity, but one can hardly blame them for that since it is their duty to do so.

Times should not only display in this world have a little left. And while William K. Vanderbilt Jr. is a Christian, his wife is Mrs. Alexander, who was formerly a San Francisco social figure, and before that the Nevada sage hen plans and is the mining town of Gold Hill.

and a splendid Christmas dinner—and in the Christmas happiness could have come to the millionaire and his children that to be able to so beautifully serve the poor and needy.

RETIRED MEN MAY BRING ADMIRAL GOODRICH WEST.

News from Washington tell of the retirement this week of Admiral Goodrich, who has reached the age limit in the navy.

It may be that this will mean the end of the Goodrich to this coast, for many of the retired admirals are making their permanent homes either at Berkeley or at Santa Barbara.

Admiral Miller is at Berkeley and at a center for many other retired admirals of distinction and the Goodrichs will have much to do in the social life of the coast are prominently established at Santa Barbara.

The Goodrichs, who are retired from the navy, were exceedingly popular in the island in San Francisco and in Berkeley, where they spent a great deal of time.

One may say that the fortunes of the navy may bring them back to this coast where they have many old friends.

Admiral Goodrich is a retired admiral of the navy, and he is now in the navy.

OAKLAND BUZZES TO GO ABROAD.

Miss Mildred Gray, Miss Mary Alexander and Miss Lillian Wellman form a party of friends who are leaving Oakland this week on their trip to Europe.

They are going directly to New York and will from there take the Mediterranean in trip, beginning their itinerary in Italy. They will spend the winter in Rome, and the spring and summer in the continent and next winter they will be in Egypt.

They are all experienced travelers, having made many trips in the past and being able to return to make their friends so much of the many centers through which they have journeyed.

Miss Mildred Gray is a most talented speaker and her vocal classes in Bohemia are very interesting.

She brought with her a number of her personal experiences in travel, and her collection in the club was very popular.

Miss Mary Alexander has been abroad many times, and on her last European trip she spent six months in the most famous cities and many months in Greece finding the ruins and the history of ancient times.

HEAVY EARTHQUAKE SHAKES MEXICO

HAYWARD LABORERS RIOT OVER CLOSING A DITCH

Capitalist and the Town Officials Clash

HAYWARD, Jan. 9.—A warrant for the arrest of Marshal Schilling and Charles LaFrance, who are charged with malicious mischief, was the latest move of W. D. Meek, the Hayward capitalist, in his fight with the town in regard to the drainage of storm water through his property on Castro street.

The warrant was sworn to late yesterday before Judge J. M. Frank of San Francisco. It is the latest move of Meek, who has been fighting the town since he closed the ditch through his property on Castro street.

Constable Ramage of Hayward, who was given the warrant, stated this morning that he would not serve it as the necessity for so doing had passed. He said that the town had been advised by the state engineer to close the ditch, and that he had been advised to prevent him from obstructing the ditch, the judgment of the matter now rests with the court.

How the Trouble Started—A riot between employees of Meek and a force of workmen sent by the town to dig the ditch across his land occurred yesterday shortly after 12 o'clock. No one was seriously injured in the melee. Two of Meek's employees were arrested by Marshal Schilling and charged with resisting an officer. They are John Leander and Manuel Peters. Anton Hines, their foreman, furnished bail for them.

Despite the fact that Horton at one time owned every foot of land on which San Diego now stands, he died comparatively poor. It being estimated that his estate is not worth more than $20,000. His generosity in giving away whole blocks and lots in the early days counts for this.

SCHOOLS NEED NEW BUILDINGS

San Leandro Trustees Propose to Build Them at Cost of $40,000.

SAN LEANDRO, Jan. 9.—The matter of new school buildings which was agitated some time ago and allowed to drop has been taken up with renewed interest by the board of school trustees which contemplates taking action in the near future for the issuance of bonds of about $40,000 for the purpose of providing the necessary educational facilities.

At present the two grammar schools of San Leandro are overcrowded and the trustees feel that the time has come when some decided action in the matter must be taken. One of the buildings is as old as the almost useless and its sanitary arrangements are inadequate. It is the desire of the trustees and those interested in erecting up-to-date structures which will not only be sanitary in every respect but a credit to San Leandro from an architectural standpoint.

Should the town call an election for the bonds it is the opinion of the trustees and citizens who have interested themselves in the proposition that the public would endorse the action by a overwhelming vote.

The school trustees are A. B. Chiles, F. H. Williams and C. H. Hyde.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES LAUNDRY FROM BURNING

ELMHURST, Jan. 9.—The building occupied by the Elmhurst Laundry, located on Broadway and East Fourteenth streets, was threatened with destruction by the fire of smoke. Zochalek, proprietor of the establishment, the blaze would have resulted in serious consequences.

Shortly after 8 o'clock neighbors saw smoke pouring from the windows of the part of the building occupied by the laundry. They informed Zochalek, who was in the yard at the time.

Rushing into the place which was full of smoke, Zochalek, after a strenuous effort, succeeded in smothering the flames with a blanket.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is believed a spark from the stove ignited a pile of papers on the floor. Little or no damage resulted from the flames, and all customers' clothes were saved.

Orin Shirley, residing at 804 Oak street, reported to the police that smoking from his room had been entered and a watch seized. It is a story.

The meeting was a short one and after adjournment the firemen enjoyed a game of pool. The firemen are very popular in the community and their members are well known for their charitable work.

A prize fight will be held at the Melrose fire department on Wednesday night. The prize is a gold watch. The fight will be a very exciting one and is expected to draw a large crowd.

HEART TRIBUNE'S PAGE FOR WOMEN HOME

SELF-SUPPORT FOR AN AMERICAN MOTHER RISKS THE HAPPINESS OF HER HOME

"The Woman Who Wants to Be a Man Should Wait Till Her Next Incarnation," Says Mrs. Siegel.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—"The woman who wants to be a man should wait until her next incarnation. Then possibly her wish might be realized at the expense of no one else."

So Mrs. Henry Siegel, society woman and mother of two of the most beautiful young girls that have appeared in New York in recent years, answered when asked what she thought of the charge of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman that "the wife who is not self-supporting is a slave."

"A woman slave is not a wife," Mrs. Gilman said before the American Sociological Society in session at Atlantic City. The economic dependence of the woman militates against true marriage, love being commercialized and the family injured. The higher marriage toward which we are striving requires a full-grown woman, so one a property or servant, self-supporting and proudly independent."

Mrs. Siegel was seen in her beautiful home, at 26 East 14th-street, almost under condition of unusual distress. Her daughter, the Countess Dentice de Frazz, known to be in Southern Italy, during the earthquake, had not been heard from since the catastrophe, and inquiries by cable and through the State Department had so far been without avail.

She had read Mrs. Gilman's address, however, and then urged to answer it said:

"No wife is a slave except to a God-given duty of caring for her husband and child on. She who does that well is more than self-supporting for she contributes to the welfare of the entire race instead of merely safeguarding her own."

Mrs. Siegel flies off at a tangent "continued Mrs. Siegel, who takes these abstract ethical considerations blind not to woman's first duty, which is not to herself but to her children. No woman can be self-supporting after marriage without injury to her unborn child. This is the only argument necessary to refute Mrs. Gilman."

"In some few individual instances financial independence might develop the wife's personality to her own advantage, but it would always be at the cost of her home. If women follow their natural duty, that of caring for their husbands and children, they will find peace always, if not happiness."

"Possibly some women may possess the souls of men and therefore find themselves miserable in the frames of women. Let them wait then for some future incarnation, when this error will be rectified, and instead of being the inspiration of their husbands and mothers of beautiful children they will realize their crowning ambition and become police captains and ward politicians."

Imperil Their Happiness
"If every endeavor to live the lives of men now it must be at the jeopardy of their homes and children and at the peril of their own happiness."

"The great women follow the will of the wisest of theory and are led into social and ethical quagmires when, if they followed the light of their own firesides they would find happiness and peace. Nine times out of ten the wife who works means the child that works. Surely a woman contributes more to the race by caring for and educating her children to be honorable men and women and useful citizens than by continuing after marriage a self-support which injures her for motherhood.

"Mrs. Gilman says the home is a place where the man has his meals cooked and served by the woman. She is his servant. This is a very narrow view. Marriage is an association a partnership in which each partner performs the duties which he or she is best fitted to perform. Only in fulfilling her duties does a woman find happiness. She should consider it a duty to care for her husband and children and it is a place with honor to all women who do.

Sleuth Knocks Down 'Woman' ON THE STREET

Merry Widow Disguise Fell Off and Behold! 'Twas a Man!

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Detective LeHeureux of the Central office was wandering his way slowly up Broadway, near Twentieth street, when he observed a woman appearing to be in a hurry, carrying a few packages and a hat.

"That's a comical sight," mused LeHeureux, "I'll tell the Merry Widow hat that adorns her head."

LeHeureux quickened the step and got close up to the tall round figure. He observed that the hair was auburn skirt black and of good material, shows of the high heel variety and muffled and handling easily.

The shirtwaist was an expensive one, a fine creation. "The large hat was none too large to cover the mass of hair, partly curled that stood out in great bunches."

It didn't take LeHeureux long to make sure it was a man, and he threw out his right and the fellow fell. There was a scattering of auburn hair, muffs and contents of handbag consisting of a small looking glass, a powder puff, a handkerchief and a small box of soap.

The fellow got up and wadded in to LeHeureux. There was a lively tussle for some minutes, but the detective finally subdued his man.

LeHeureux held the prisoner gathup his effects, none the least of which were several big black plumes that had come out of the Merry Widow hat.

"Who the deuce are you anyway?" asked the detective.

"Louis Korshak and I've just come from a ball, replied the man.

"How old and where do you live?"

"I live at 111 West Twenty-fifth street."

"Well, said LeHeureux, you'll have your address to 300 Broadway, sir, for a while I think."

So off they went to police headquarters. When they got there more trouble arose and it looked for a time as if there would be a panic among the pick pockets who packed up and down a long coil de lair.

That if the "lady" was locked up, they then they'd apply for a change of heart.

"Where you got your earrings?" asked a young man whose eyes seemed almost glued on two large fixtures that hung like lemons from the "lady's" ears.

LeHeureux's prisoner made no reply. The police said that "strong arm" men had been masquerading as women in different parts of the city, from time to time. They recalled a case last year when a negro disguised as a woman held up a policeman and when the latter resisted slashed him with a razor. The policeman wheeled around and got out his gun and killed the negro.

SAVED HER PATIENT; BECAME HIS BRIDE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The words "I will nurse you back to life," spoken by a trained hospital nurse eighteen months ago, marked the beginning of a romance which became known to New York's wonder day when John D. Waters, manager of the Acker, Mervall & Condit's store there, returned to his home.

Waters, who had been laid up at the point of death in St. John's Hospital, Tonkers (the nurse assigned to him) was Miss Johnstone, a pretty brunette, who had undergone an operation for cancer of the throat. For weeks he lay on his cot finally relapsing into unconsciousness. The doctor told that his last hour had come.

Miss Johnstone was directed to remain at his bedside. While she was tending the patient's feverish brow one day he opened his eyes and looked her. "This was alone."

"I know that I am dying, Waters," he faintly said, "I want to thank you for what you have done for me. I am glad you won't die," she said, firmly,

"I will nurse you back to life."

Patience and nurse gazed at each other fixedly, and at that moment a ray of light entered in their marriage began.

The nurse was as good as his word. For weeks she gave every attention to the patient, but for a time it looked as if she could not save him. But one morning he awoke a man. A few days later he was able to get up and walk. From that moment he continued on the road to recovery.

If John Waters was discharged from the hospital as cured, it was no secret among the nurses that Miss Johnstone had been his nurse. The girls' friends advised him that this perfect union on the ground that Waters was twice her age, being 41, she 22. It was also suggested that he was subject to a mild attack of heart at any time. Miss Johnstone replied that she was willing to make any sacrifice for the man she loved.

On Saturday the couple went to the City Hall and got the marriage license.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 9.—A wedding took place in the village of Praha, La. 15, between members of two families between the heads of which blood existed. Edward Goetz was the father of the bride and Younger Goetz was the father of the groom.

The members of the families met in the street soon after the marriage ceremony. Poetic the bride groom saw the older Goetz was drawing his pistol and a shot was fired at 15 feet. Instantly Goetz discharged his weapon. Goetz fell dead and his son lay on the ground.

The younger Goetz rushed up and by the time the shot was fired, the bride groom was lying on the ground. The bride's father took off his coat and ran to his son's side. He found him dead.

SYMPATHETIC WOMEN BUY KITTENS TO SAVE THEM

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—A small boy carrying a covered basket boarded a north-bound pay-as-you-enter car at Fourth avenue and Ninth street yesterday afternoon. The car was filled with women. The boy saw the lid of the basket lifted and the round, black head of a kitten protruded.

"Oh, you dear little thing!" exclaimed a young woman reaching down and picking up the kitten.

"That's four of them," said the boy. "I'm taking them to the society to be sold."

"Won't you let me have that one?" asked the first young woman.

"Sure," said the boy. "He's the lid of the basket and he'll take the lid of the basket."

The young woman in the car was deeply interested. They got around the boy and all begged for kittens. He saw that the demand exceeded the supply and so he began to take orders from a large number of ladies.

The boy jumped out of the car with an empty basket and 75 cents.

And the four rescued kittens rode on to their new homes.

Clay Gods

Is not so much that you have ceased to love me.

Not that your heart is turned away from me.

But that you who came so far above me should now be constant and unfaithful to me.

It is not my heart is bleeding 'neath its quiet cover.

Not that I move in anguish all life through.

But this the sweetest thought O noble lover.

That I am now a finer thing than you.

—Cora Richmond M. Elton in Smart Set.

FIRST WOMAN TO SAIL IN AIRSHIP

Mrs. Harriet O. Berg is the first woman to make an aerial ascension, and declares that the experience was a very pleasant one. She is going up with Wilbur Wright. She is an Englishwoman, but she has spent many years in the United States. The flight was made at 10 A.M. and no doubt other women would have liked to go if the opportunity offered.
